

A Discussion of Chlorhexidine gluconate pocket lavage to prevent cardiac implantable electronic device infection in high-risk procedures

Hosted by Christopher V. DeSimone, MD, PhD, FHRF and Danesh Kella, MBBS, FHRF

Article Information:

Article for Discussion: Chlorhexidine gluconate pocket lavage to prevent cardiac implantable electronic device infection in high-risk procedures

Authors: Juan Carlos Diaz, MD, Eric D. Braunstein, MD, Felipe Cañas, MD, Mauricio Duque, MD, FHRS, Jorge Eduardo Marín, MD, Julian Aristizabal, MD, Cesar Daniel Niño, MD, Oriana Bastidas, MD, Carolina Hoyos, MD, Nathaniel Steiger, MD, Carlos D. Matos, MD, William H. Sauer, MD, FHRS, Jorge E. Romero, MD, FHRS

Publication: Heart Rhythm Journal

Today's Hosts

Christopher V. DeSimone,
MD, PhD, FHRM
Mayo Clinic

Danesh Kella,
MBBS, FHRM
Mayo Clinic

Today's Contributors:

Christopher J. McLeod,
MBChB, PhD, FHRS
Mayo Clinic

Siva K. Mulpuru,
MD, FHRS
Mayo Clinic

Disclosures:

Christopher V. DeSimone, MD, PhD, FHRS

- Nothing to disclose.

Danesh Kella, MBBS, FHRS

- Honoraria/Speaking/Consulting: Zoll Medical Company

Christopher J. McLeod, MBChB, PhD, FHRS

- Honoraria/Speaking/Consulting: Biosig Technologies

Siva K. Mulpuru, MD, FHRS

- Nothing to disclose.

Thank you!